

AUTHOR MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION GUIDELINES

SUBMISSION OF ARTICLE MANUSCRIPTS

- Manuscripts should be in .doc format and uploaded via <https://upjournals.up.ac.za/index.php/historia/about/submissions>
- Authors must declare in writing that the article has not been published elsewhere or submitted to another journal for possible publication.
- Submissions should be edited for language usage and adhere to the Historia guidelines.
- Opinions expressed and conclusions drawn are those of the author/s and should under no circumstances be considered the opinions of the HASA, Historia's editorial board, or the journal's editors.
- No single-authored articles by the same author will be published in consecutive editions of Historia. Should any of the editors wish to publish in Historia, the full editorial discretion in respect of those submissions must be delegated to another editor.

REVIEWING PROTOCOLS

- Authors, reviewers, and editorial staff should treat all submitted manuscripts and correspondence with the Editorial Office as confidential.
- All submissions are assessed on receipt before possible peer review.
- Articles that are plagiarised, poorly written, or do not adhere to the focus and guidelines of Historia will not be accepted for peer review.
- No correspondence will be entered into about submissions that have been turned down.
- Historia's reviewing process for articles is 'double blind'. In the case of contradictory reports, a third reader will act as arbiter.
- Historia's reviewing process for solicited contributions for the 'Perspectives Forum' comprises assessment by members of the Editorial team.

REVIEW & EDITING PROCESSES

- A minimum of three months should be allowed for the review process.
- Once submissions have been provisionally accepted, authors are expected to return their revised versions to their editor within eight weeks.
- The relevant editor will then assess the revised article for its readiness – or otherwise – for publication. They may require further changes (within reason), technical and otherwise.
- Page proofs are always given to authors, who are responsible for checking them.
- Corrected page proofs are to be returned to the editor and the co-ordinating editor within seven days of receipt.
- Post-publishing Corrections: A published article forms part of the published record and will not be altered or removed. Corrections will be published if a published article contains a significant error that affects, for example, the accuracy of the article. Minor errors, such as typographical errors, will generally not be corrected. Corrections are published as either Errata or Corrigenda. Both Errata and Corrigenda are published at the discretion of the Editor-in-Chief. Errata and Corrigenda will be published both online and in the print version in the forthcoming issue. Errata: An Erratum is the correction of an error introduced by the Journal during editing or production. The Author will be given an opportunity to approve an Erratum before publication. - Corrigenda: A Corrigendum is the correction of an error made by the author/s.

BOOK REVIEWS

Historia publishes reviews of books on the history of southern Africa. Reviews are usually solicited by the review editor, although unsolicited reviews will be considered, provided they adhere to our guidelines and fall within the focus of the journal. Reviews of books dealing with countries outside southern Africa should indicate the relevance of such books to historians of this region.

- All reviews are submitted to the editors and if necessary, to other referees before publication.
- Reviews should be in .doc form and be submitted to the review editor/uploaded by the agreed deadline.
- If it is not possible to review the book within the agreed time, the review copy should be returned to the review editor.
- The review should end with the name (without titles) and the institutional affiliation of the reviewer in italics. Independent scholars or reviewers without institutional affiliation should give their town or city of residence.
- Book reviews do not qualify for subsidy purposes by DHET.
- Reviews should be between 1 000 and 1 500 words and may include bibliographic and other references, although these should be kept to a minimum.
- The same referencing system as for articles should be used.
- All quotations from the book under review must be followed by the exact page reference in brackets at the end of the quotation.
- Reviews are published with a short heading (six to eight words) indicating the tenor of the review. Where a reviewer does not include a heading, the review editor will provide one.
- The heading should be followed by the bibliographic data of the book under review, as in this example:

Martin Legassick, The Struggle for the Eastern Cape, 1800–1854: Subjugation and the Roots of South African Democracy.

Johannesburg: KMM Review Publishing Company, 2010

REVIEW ARTICLES

- A review article is longer and more detailed than a review. It should be 4 000 to 6 000 words and follow the usual technical requirements as for articles.
- A review article should place the book/s under review within historiographical context and should indicate the importance of the book/s to the wider field.
- Review articles are usually commissioned by the review editor, although unsolicited review articles may be considered for publication, at the discretion of the review editor.
- All review articles are anonymously peer reviewed by experts in the field and may qualify for subsidy purposes by the Department of Higher Education and Training (DHET) by those attached to South African institutions of higher learning.
